“ It is so different looking at an obituary post and seeing a picture of someone you knew and loved. Deborah or Debbie as she was to all when I was growing up, received me as her own child when she and my dad married when I was just a little boy. She doted on me, bragged on me, was proud of me and could not have treated me better if I was her own. She was always willing to be there for me, whether if it was letting me drive her car, cutting my hair, wanting to hear me sing, fixing supper and wanting me to come eat...she loved me as she loved all those that called her mom or step-mom. She leaves an empty spot, but that empty spot, as she knew, can be filled with the presence of Jesus. Love to Mom Debbie, Chris.
